

my-iPlan is a dynamic web-based individual learning plan (ILP) designed to support the learner and all those involved in their learning and progress. my-iPlan develops a whole picture of the learner - coherent and holistic - describing:

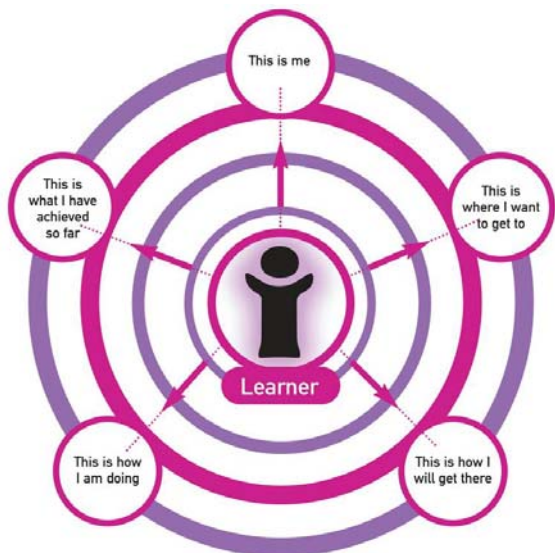

Whenever, Wherever, Whoever

The learner can access their iPlan wherever they are engaged in the learning process.

The learner and whoever supports their learning and progress can share, review and update the iPlan whenever they want to – through secure 24/7 online access.

This unique ILP cracks the issues of:

- Learner ownership
- Operational effectiveness
- Supporting effective collaboration through enabling the access and exchange of information between providers in support of the learner

Empowering the 21st Century Learner

Each learner owns their iPlan in which they can record achievements, express aspirations and set and review personal targets. However, to ensure every learner's iPlan is authentic and accurate; all information entered by a learner must be validated by an adult involved with their learning.

So, how does it work?

By extracting data from existing management systems every learner's iPlan can be preloaded with their personal information, attendance records, prior attainment and programme of study. Inputting data in this way will not only save considerable time for individual learners, but also ensures the information is accurate and avoids duplication.

Real-time Reporting

To inform and support stakeholders involved with the learner or the learning process, my-iPlan contains a powerful management and reporting tool. This can be used to produce high quality data and sophisticated reports to enable effective institution or area-wide curriculum planning.
